

Questions for Every Day by David Levithan

- Use three words to describe the book - Go!
- Was reading this type of book outside your “comfort zone?”
- If you could live in the body of one person for one day, who would it be?
- Was it hard for you to really think of A as neither gender? (I struggled with it a lot).
- Did you think it was creepy or romantic that A pursued Rhiannon so much?
- What did you think about A’s actions at the end of the book?
- Favorite quotes/concepts?
- Do you think A really did understand the concept of love and relationships as we know them, as he claims?
- What did you think about A’s perception of mental illness, sexuality and innate physical traits?
- Agree or disagree: “I wanted love to conquer all. But love can’t conquer anything. It can’t do anything on its own. It relies on us to do the conquering on its behalf.”
